

Deborah Ostreicher

Founder, Distinguished Communications

Deborah believes communication is the cornerstone of success in any field. Helping individuals and teams use communication to improve their work relationships and workload is what Deborah finds most rewarding.

She has spent her career in leadership positions around the globe, including as Marketing Director for a multi-national hi-tech company in Central Europe, as Events Manager for King Charles III in the U.K., as Chief of Staff to the Phoenix mayor, and her last position as Vice President of Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport. She credits her success in business largely to her ability to communicate effectively and now teaches individuals and teams to do the same.

In addition to “How to Give and Receive Feedback,” some of her most popular keynotes include, “Assertive Communication for Women in the Building Industry,” “Interviews that WIN Work!” and “Mentoring is as Much About Learning as Teaching.”

Her book, entitled Enter, Enlighten, and Exit is a simple guide to making clear, concise, and compelling presentations. She earned her undergraduate degree in Liberal Arts from the University of Maryland, College Park, her MBA in International Business at the American University, Washington, D.C. and her certificate in Leadership Communications from Harvard University, Cambridge.
