

Jhay Delo Reyes

Director of Product Delivery and Construction, Alameda County Transportation Commission

Jhay Delos Reyes is the Director of Project Delivery and Construction for the Alameda County Transportation Commission responsible to oversee projects sponsored by Alameda CTC. The Capital Project program includes projects included in Alameda County's voter-approved transportation expenditure plan from 2014 as well as transportation infrastructure projects that support goods movement, rail safety for at-grade crossings and active transportation.

The current total cost of the Capital Project program is $2.5 billion including several upcoming construction projects that will be advertised, awarded and administered by Alameda CTC such as East Bay Greenway Multimodal – North Segment and San Pablo Avenue Parallel Bike Improvements.

Jhay obtained his Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo and is registered Civil Engineer in California.