

RAVEN ADAMS

Director of Sustainability, Granite Construction

Raven Adams leads the Sustainability program at Granite Construction, one of the largest civil infrastructure companies in the United States. The United Nations Global Compact Network USA recognized Adams as the 2023 USA SDG Pioneer (Large and Multi-National Companies) for her work to advance the Sustainable Development Goals. Adams received her BA in Psychology and Neuroscience from Colby College and her JD from the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, where she focused on environmental and natural resources law.

At Granite, Adams is responsible for sustainability strategic planning, stakeholder engagement, and corporate reporting. She also serves as Chair of the National Asphalt Pavement Association (NAPA) Sustainability Committee. Adams also serves as Board Chair of the Community Health Trust of Pajaro Valley, a nonprofit advancing health equity. In 2022, Adams was recognized by ENR California as a 20-under-40 "Top Young Professional," and honored by Diligent as a Modern Governance 100 ESG, Diversity & Climate Trailblazer.
