

Sarah Sabera-Turab

Senior Project Manager, Planning, Design & Construction
University of California, Riverside

Sarah Sabera-Turab is a licensed architect and Senior Project Manager at UC Riverside's Planning, Design & Construction department. She currently leads the $150 million Undergraduate Teaching and Learning Facility, in active construction, and the $350 million UCR Health Specialty Ambulatory Center. She previously delivered the Student Success Center and the School of Medicine, working as a consultant with Accenture, and has managed a large design-build project on campus, giving her broad experience across academic, student life, and healthcare-adjacent facility types.

Sara holds a California architecture license alongside PMP, DBIA, LEED AP BD+C, and WELL AP credentials, and brings a combined perspective as both a licensed design professional and an owner's-side project manager to every project she leads
