

Sarah Tacker

Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer | Shimmick Construction Company, Inc.

Sarah Tacker is Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Shimmick, where she leads operations across the company's divisions and helps drive operational performance, project execution, and sustainable business growth. She was appointed to the role in April 2026.

Sarah brings 27 years of experience in the heavy civil construction industry, with extensive expertise in infrastructure project delivery, operations, financial and change management, workforce development, planning, and scheduling. Throughout her career, she has held multiple executive leadership positions and has contributed to and led some of California's most significant infrastructure projects.

Her project experience includes the San Francisco–Oakland Bay Bridge Skyway, the first Caltrans contract to exceed $1 billion, and the Presidio Parkway Project, California's first highway delivered through a public-private partnership.

Beyond her project and operational leadership, Sarah is actively involved in advancing the construction industry and developing its future workforce. She participates in Associated General Contractors of California and serves on the Beavers Organization's Women in Heavy Civil Committee, supporting initiatives focused on scholarships, networking, leadership development, and expanding opportunities for women throughout the industry.

Sarah holds a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering from Tulane University.
